A+ For MSU Organic Farm!
MSU earned a perfect score, one of only six universities in the nation, in the first Organic Land Grant Assessment! The results are based on research, education, and outreach efforts in organic agriculture.

Did you know?
The MSU Student Organic Farm was founded in 1999 and has quickly grown to a 10 acre certified organic farm. Some of the produce grown on the organic farm is even sold to on-campus dining halls. To learn more about the organic farm, visit the website here.

MSU FUN FACT!
Did you know that Sparty has been featured in ESPN commercials, on Jones Soda bottles, and was named “buffest mascot” by Muscle and Fitness Magazine?

Taking it to the streets to give back
Monday, August 20th marks the first annual Michigan State University Day of Service. Hundreds of students, staff, and volunteers will be giving back to the Lansing community. Volunteers will meet at the rock on Farm Lane at 8:15 to hear remarks from MSU leadership, Virg Bernero, and Diane Goddeeris. To view a list of volunteer sites and see how you can help, click here.

International Students Visit MSU
Master’s degree and doctorate students from Asia and Africa will be visiting MSU as they travel to universities all over the U.S. to learn about enhancing food security in their home countries. The USDA defines food security as “access by all people at all times to enough food for an active, healthy lifestyle.” To read the full article visit the State News website.
