More news has been given about the pieces of art that will be on display in this amazing museum! Eli Broad and his wife Edythe, have just donated 18 works by artists including Terry Winters and Sue Williams. They have also donated a sculpture called “Containment 1” by Roxy Paine that will be on display in the museum’s sculpture garden!

Other features of the museum include a collection with 7,500 objects from Greek and Roman periods through the Renaissance and Modern.

Click here to read an article on the MSU Website or click here to visit the Eli and Edythe Broad Art Museum Website!

During 2012, we are observing the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Morrill Act, which helped democratize higher education and bring science and innovation to everyday life. It’s also a fitting time to celebrate some of the life-changing and lifesaving discoveries made by Spartans through the years.

To read more about Spartan’s breakthrough discoveries, click here.